Saskatoon, take Pride: Record turnout expected

Festival. More than 15,000 projected to participate over eight days; event supports LGBTT community while serving as an economic motor for city

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

This year's Saskatoon Pride Festival will likely be the largest Pride event the province has ever seen.

According to Brice Field, chair of the Saskatoon Diversity Network, the non-profit organization that holds the Pride Festival, organizers are expecting more than 15,000 people to participate in the eight-day event that kicks off Saturday.

On the web

For a full list of Pride Festival events, visit saskatoonpride.ca.

In addition to showing support for Saskatoon's LGBTT community, Field noted the festival will benefit the entire city, as the festival itself has become an economic boon.

"With it growing so fast, it's a great way for the community to showcase queer art and culture to the general population of Saskatchewan," said Field. "And as it's growing bigger, the Pride Festival is really starting to benefit the whole city of Saskatoon with the economic impact that we bring in.

"We have people coming in from all over Western Canada for this," he added.

When asked how he feels about the festival's rising popularity, he said it makes all the hard work involved in organizing it a lot easier.

"It's been good. The Pride Festival is run 100 per cent on volunteers. There's nobody on staff, so we have a board of directors of seven that puts this on and we spend 10 months of the year, a lot of time outside of our regular paying jobs, putting this on," said Field. "The thing that makes it worthwhile is the fact that it is growing."

This year will also be the first time the Pride Festival's free Community Fair runs more than a single day, allowing festival-goers the chance to enjoy live entertainment on both Friday, June 14 from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m. and Saturday, June 15 from 12 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Saskatchewan population profit is Manitoba's loss

The right rate. Tax breaks a vital incentive for westward migration

ROSS ROMANIUK
Metro in Regina

Sask. savings

$5,382

A Manitoban who earns $40,000, and buys a $25,000 used vehicle and $300,000 home, will pay $5,382 more in taxes than the same person in Saskatchewan.

The boundary between Manitoba and Saskatchewan is seeing far more movement of residents westward than toward the east, statistics show. FLICKR.COM: TEAM SCUBY

Saskatchewan's population is gaining at an ever-increasing pace at Manitoba's expense, and some analysts say tax differences are the key reason.

Net migration to Saskatchewan from Manitoba reached a five-year high in 2011-12, as the number of people hit 495 — way up from 99 in 2007-08.

The Canadian Taxpayers Federation (CTF) points to several financial factors in addition to Manitoba's provincial sales tax, which is slated to jump to eight per cent from seven per cent this summer — significantly higher than Saskatchewan's five per cent PST.

"Saskatchewan has to be loving these numbers," Colin Craig, Prairie region director with the CTF, said on Thursday of the Statistics Canada figures.

"Talented Manitobans are taking their money out of the Manitoba economy and plunking it down in Saskatchewan."

In Manitoba, personal income tax on a salary of $40,000 is $7,880 — more than $800 higher than what a Saskatchewan resident pays in the same income bracket. On a $60,000 gross salary, a Manitoban currently pays $14,581, while a Saskatchewan worker is taxed $13,760.

"We want to create a situation in Saskatchewan that makes us attractive, not necessarily at the expense of another province or another area," Finance Minister Ken Krawetz told Metro last month.

"There's room for growth in Saskatchewan, and we're interested in that — moving forward with a growth agenda."

Craig pointed out that the difference on a $40,000 salary between the two Prairie provinces is more staggering if that taxpayer purchases a $25,000 used vehicle and a home for $300,000.

Because a Saskatchewan resident in that situation would pay no sales tax on the car compared with $1,750 in Manitoba, and a land transfer fee of $900 on the home instead of Manitoba's $3,720, the overall difference — including the personal income tax — totals $5,382 in Saskatchewan's favour.

And, Craig noted, that total doesn't include the PST difference and school taxes.

Great Plains festival will make you LOL, no BS

Dez Reed, founder of the Great Plains Comedy Festival METRO

Residents in Saskatoon should get ready to laugh out loud.

The 12th annual Great Plains Comedy Festival is running at various venues throughout the city from June 10 to June 16, and features a number of comic heavyweights from across Canada and the world.

Dez Reed, owner of Dez Reed's Comedy Club and executive director and founder of the festival, said the event is the perfect place for residents to get introduced to the art form of standup comedy, as the festival is known as one of Canada's premier comedy events.

"It's grown into one of the more respected comedy festivals in the Canadian business," said Reed. "It's all fan-driven and (by) local businesses who are fans of comedy, so that's the neat thing about it too. It's a sort of grassroots, typical Saskatchewan venture."

The festival features a number of comedians, including award-winning jokester Tommy Savitt, Tonight Show regular John Wing and one of Saskatoon's own rising comedians, Irish Steve Thomas.

Reed explained those performing at the festival have come a long way in the business of standup, a task he says is by no means an easy one.

Alleged escapee makes brief court appearance

Steven Best, the 29-year-old man who police say escaped custody while at Royal University Hospital, made a brief court appearance Thursday morning where he received two new charges against him.

The new charges are one count of assault and one count of obstructing an officer in their line of duty.

According to police, Best escaped custody by threatening two corrections officers with the blade of a disposable razor. In relation to the escape, he's charged with two counts of assault with a weapon, two counts of unlawful confinement and one count of escape lawful custody.

Best is scheduled to be back in court on June 28.

Weather woes

Relay for Life switches venues

Forecasted rain and stormy weather has caused the Saskatoon Relay for Life, taking place Friday, to switch venues to the CNH Training Centre at 230 Marquis Dr. W.

"The move was necessary for participant and public safety," organizers said in a press release.

The annual event is expected to see up to 1,000 people attending and has already raised close to $180,000 for cancer research.

I am Rider woman, hear me roar

Fan-tastic project. University student delves into female fandom in Rider Nation

Katie Sveinson is taking an unconventional look into the psyches of those who celebrate Saskatchewan's Green and White — particularly the women.

Sveinson, a University of Regina master's student, has set out to determine whether female Saskatchewan Roughriders fans are empowered or marginalized — and the result of her pilot project found that neither of those words really describes them.

What she has discovered is that female fandom in Rider Nation is many things — but most of all, it's inclusive.

"It's inclusive to everyone, and to me that is something that not a lot of places could maybe accomplish ... that level of welcoming and inclusiveness to anyone who wants to be a fan," Sveinson said Thursday.

She interviewed nine women from the ages of 20 to 55 as part of the initial component of the project in January. And two weeks ago, she received a Shirk Scholarship of $17,500 to dig deeper into the subject as part of her master's thesis in the U of R's faculty of kinesiology and health studies.

She plans to expand the project to include "highly identified" female fans and geographically displaced fans, and she will continue to look at what sets Riders fans apart from supporters of the other eight Canadian Football League teams.

Katie Sveinson, a University of Regina master's degree student, is examining the women of Rider Nation for her thesis. ALYSSA MCDONALD/METRO IN REGINA

"You see that these fans are unique, but it's why," said Sveinson.

"Is it being a Riders fan, or is it Saskatchewan? Is it the CFL? Or is it Canada? I have no idea."

Sveinson began her research after noticing the difference between when she donned a Riders jersey and a Green Bay Packers jersey. She felt people were always questioning her football knowledge while she wore her Packers jersey.

The 24-year-old has found the result of her Riders research to be unique compared with previous studies of female sports fans — most of which came from Europe and Australia, where there has been a divide between men and women. That's not what she sees with the Riders fandom.

"Everybody is a fan — that's all that matters."

Green and White faithful still believe

As the first week of Roughriders training camp continues in Saskatoon, Metro goes to the stands to find out how fans are feeling about the Riders' upcoming CFL season.

Don Clark, 53, retail meat cutter

"I think they're going to do all right. They should come out first in the West and we'll see from there, but they look very strong."

Patrick Janex, 29, city employee

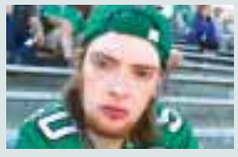
"Hopefully a lot better than last year, because last year wasn't too good. So hopefully there will be a big change."

Travis Hiebert, 33, drywaller

"We're looking awesome. Our defence is stacked like crazy. Offence is looking really tight. It's great having Rob Bagg back and healthy. We're going to be a really tight team, I think."

Victoria Millette, 21, student

"They're going to do really good. We have the Grey Cup here, so they have to."



Riley Butz, 23, resident worker, Salvation Army

"It's looking very promising. With all of the off-season moves that they did, they've closed up a lot of the gaps they had at the defensive line, as well as making sure that if we do have injuries on the offence, that we're going to have people that are able to step in and fill a role."

Stacey Mann, 24, student

"I think that the Riders will probably finish toward the top of the West in the CFL, hopefully. (First or second place) would be nice, and then (they'll) secure a home playoff spot."

5 Things to do at Saskatoon Pride Fest

1 Civic Flag Raising

FLICKR

Head over to city hall on Monday, June 10 at 10:30 a.m. to show your pride colours as the traditional rainbow flag is raised — an annual Pride tradition. Speakers will include representatives from city council and members of the Pride Festival organizing team.

2 Prairie Pride

JANE CAULFIELD/METRO

Kicking off the week is the annual Prairie Pride Diva/Divo competition at Diva's Night Club on June 8. The night will feature some of the area's best drag queens performing in some of the best drag performances Saskatoon has to offer. Doors open at 8:30 p.m. and tickets cost $5 for non-members.

3 Burlesque Workshop

Learn to unleash your inner sassy lady or saucy guy at the Burlesque/Queeresque Workshop hosted by Saskatoon's Rosebud Burlesque Club. For just $5 you can learn some tricks of the trade, including a proper burlesque walk and a burlesque glove removal. The workshop takes place June 11 at the Free Flow Dance Centre.

4 Pride Festival Community Fair

JANE CAULFIELD/METRO

Now with two full days of musicals, drag and other entertaining performances, the community fair welcomes everyone to join in the fun. Fair-goers can head over to Victoria Park on June 14 between 4 and 10 p.m. or June 15 between 12 and 6 p.m. to browse through vendor booths or enjoy a cold bevvy at the Pride Beer Gardens (legal drinking age, of course).

5 Pride Parade

Filling the streets of Saskatoon's downtown core with every colour you can imagine, the annual Pride Festival Parade will kick off at 1 p.m, — rain or shine, so dress appropriately. The only rules are to leave your "-isms" at home and to have as much fun as possible.

Reducing harmful gas

Cap and Capture nearly capped

Saskatoon's Green Energy Park Cap and Capture project, which turns environmentally harmful gasses into useable power, will soon be going through a crucial stage in its construction.

According to Brenda Wallace, branch manager of environmental services, construction to connect the landfill's gas-well field to a nearby blower flare station will occur between June 10 and June 15.

Despite the expected 20-minute increase in wait times at the dump for construction, Wallace said she's excited the project is moving forward.

"This gets us a step closer for sure, and the expectation is that project will be starting to generate electricity in 2014."

She explained that the project at the Saskatoon Landfill will reduce the amount of greenhouse gasses, like methane and carbon dioxide, being released into the air.

The amount of energy expected to be produced through the cap and capture project would be enough to power 1,300 homes, while reducing greenhouse gasses by 45,000 tons annually.

"This is the first project within the green-energy park that will be up and running, and it really is like the dawn of a new era in Saskatoon in terms of energy diversity and clean energy," said Wallace. "It's very exciting." MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Today Show. Wrist slasher says America's IRS ruined his life

A 76-year-old man yelling that the government was going to take his house slit his wrists outside NBC's Today Show Thursday morning before he was taken into police custody as an emotionally disturbed person, police said.

The man, Pak Chong-Mar, was in the crowd outside the Today Show studio at Rockefeller Plaza in New York and was yelling about how the U.S. Internal Revenue Service was corrupt and ruined his life, authorities said.

He took out a knife and sliced at his wrists, police said.

Today Show host Matt Lauer tweeted: "Sorry, a man attempted to harm himself with a knife."

Lauer also explained the situation to viewers of the live TV show.

Police and plaza security guards quickly subdued the man and took him into custody, authorities and witnesses said. Some bystanders in the crowd were treated for exposure to blood.

Police took the man to a hospital where his mental health was being evaluated. His injuries were not life threatening.

The man's last known address was in Queens.

Not seen on TV

"I saw him take slice after slice. I saw the blood gushing."

Witness Kellie Ostransky told The New York Post.

Ostransky, who lives near Phoenix, was in New York to celebrate her birthday with her twin sister.

Lauer later sent a Twitter message that read: "All secure on the plaza after a scary incident. Thanks to our security team and the NYPD."

Mexico

Major rescue of kidnapped migrants, most from Central America

Mexican soldiers have rescued 165 people kidnapped by a drug cartel and held for as long as three weeks in a home alongside the U.S. border.

National security spokesman Eduardo Sanchez says 150 victims were U.S.-bound migrants from Central America.

Fourteen were Mexicans and one was from India.

He said Thursday that a 20-year-old man found guarding the house was detained.

The rescue by soldiers occurred on Tuesday in Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, a town just across the border from McAllen, Texas.

Sanchez gave no indication of who was suspected of the crimes by the Mexican authorities.

The Zetas cartel is behind most of the abductions of migrants along the United States-Mexico border.

In 2010 alone the cartel was blamed for killing 72 migrants in northern Mexico.

Many outraged by U.S. phone-data collection

Secret disclosure. National Security Agency requires details of Verizon calls be turned over

Americans were outraged Thursday that the biggest wireless carrier in the United States, Verizon, is providing the feds with logs of customer phone calls, but politicians brushed off their concerns by pointing out the practice has been in place for seven years and is aimed at nabbing terrorists.

"I'm a Verizon customer; I don't mind Verizon turning over records to the government," said Lindsey Graham, a Republican senator harshly critical of the Obama administration's surveillance of reporters' calls and emails. In a court order obtained by the Guardian newspaper, the National Security Agency requires Verizon to turn over "originating and terminating" telephone numbers as well as the location, time and duration.

It also demands that the order itself be kept secret. Former United States vice-president Al Gore called it "obscenely outrageous."

Just doing their jobs?

Verizon said in a memo to employees that while "Verizon continually takes steps to safeguard its customers' privacy," it must hand over information when ordered to by a court.

- The American Civil Liberties Union called for an immediate end to the practice.

U.S. civil libertarians outraged

An official with the American Civil Liberties Union called the order "beyond Orwellian." Bosnians protest expired ID law

Bosnians and their babies protest in front of the Bosnian parliament building in Sarajevo Thursday. Nearly 3,000 people formed a chain around Bosnia's parliament saying they won't let politicians go home until they start doing their jobs instead of keeping the country paralyzed with ethnic bickering. What started as a small protest over a new law on personal identification numbers the day before has grown into a blockade of the building. They demand a new law on personal ID numbers after the old one lapsed in February, leaving all babies born since without personal documents.

No beef with beef. E. coli outbreak hasn't shaken consumer confidence

Canadian cattle producers say an E. coli outbreak that made 18 people sick and led to an recall last fall hasn't shaken consumer confidence in beef.

Canada Beef Inc., the industry's marketing arm, said total beef consumption last year was up 2.2 per cent from 2011.

Chairman Chuck MacLean said the industry supports the findings of an independent review that blamed lax attitudes by federal inspectors and staff at the XL Foods plant in Brooks, Alta., for the tainted meat.

Canada Beef said it also supports Ottawa's plan to tighten rules for meat plants and add more inspections.

"I like the 30 recommendations and I think a lot of them are already being enacted," MacLean said Thursday from Bow Island in southeastern Alberta. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Political violence. Four suspects with alleged ties to extreme-right movements arrested

A group of neo-Nazis beat a French far-left activist to death in the heart of Paris' shopping district, officials said Thursday, in an attack that raised fears of increased far-right violence.

Political tensions are high in France after months of protests against legalizing gay marriage that sometimes ended with troublemakers from the extreme right clashing with police.

Interior Minister Manuel Valls said a fight broke out Wednesday evening between two groups of young people in a pedestrian street just steps away from the famous Printemps department store. The activist, Clement Meric, was initially hospitalized in grave condition, then died Thursday, said Agnes Thibault-Lecuivre, spokeswoman for the Paris prosecutor's office.

Four suspects, aged 20 to 37 and believed to have links to extreme-right movements, were arrested, Thibault-Lecuivre said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

- "There is no place for small neo-Nazi groups whose enemy is the nation," Interior Minister Manuel Valls said.
- Marine Le Pen, the leader of the far-right National Front party, tried to distance herself, saying they shouldn't be lumped together.

Miss World pageant covers up

Indonesia. Pageant contestants will have to opt for more conservative sarongs instead of bikinis

Miss World has axed the famed bikinis from this year's pageant in Indonesia, replacing the skimpy swimsuits with conservative beach sarongs amid mounting protests from hard-line Muslim groups, organizers said Thursday.

All of the more than 130 contestants will be required to wear Bali's traditional long sarongs instead of the sexy bikinis that are historically part of the competition, said Adjie S. Soeratmadjie of the RCTI, the official broadcaster and local organizer.

Parts of the pageant will take place on the resort island of Bali and the final round will be held Sept. 28 near the capital, Jakarta. Indonesia is the world's most populous Muslim country.

"There will be no bikini in this year's Miss World pageant to respect our traditional customs and values," Soeratmadjie said, adding that the London-based Miss World Organization is on board with the decision.

"This is a sensitive issue in Indonesia. We have discussed it since last year and they have agreed," he said.

The chairwoman of the Miss World Organization, Julia Morley, confirmed that none of the 137 contestants would wear a bikini.

"Indonesia is designing for us a very beautiful one-piece beachwear, and I'm very happy with them," she told The Associated Press by phone from London, adding that the pageant will include a special beachwear fashion show.

"I don't think Indonesia is the only country that has that culture," Morley said. "But we like to work in the manner respectful to every country, and I cannot see why when you go to somebody's country you should not behave respectfully."

The pageant began in the 1950s, and the first winner was crowned in a two-piece bathing suit.

Soeratmadjie said the sarong would be made creatively and designed specifically for the event. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Health minister tables bill to tighten rules on injection sites

The federal government has introduced tough new rules for supervised drug-injection sites, in a move some see as an effort to deter such facilities.

The government says it's a response to a Supreme Court of Canada ruling that ordered the Conservatives to keep a Vancouver clinic open against their will.

But NDP health critic Libby Davies said the government is effectively blocking any chance of setting up a new clinic.

The new legislation would require advocates of new clinics to meet two dozen specific criteria before they can apply to open a new clinic. Among other things, they would have to canvass community opinion and gain the support of provincial and municipal authorities.

The health minister would then make the final decision.

As Health Minister Leona Aglukkaq tabled her bill on Thursday, she made it clear which way she will lean.

"Our government believes that a site involving the use of illicit substances should be strictly controlled to protect everyone in the community," she told reporters.

"Accordingly, we believe that the application process needs to be changed to create formal opportunities for local voices to be heard and their views considered before an exemption would be considered." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sex ed. Changes being sought for Ontario's sex-education curriculum

The teacher consultant for a Windsor school board is part of a growing chorus — which includes the University of Toronto, Public Health Ontario and The Hospital for Sick Children — calling for Ontario to release its updated sexual-education curriculum.

The existing curriculum has remained mostly unchanged since 1998, and a lot has happened since then, says Sharon Seslija, of Greater Essex County District School Board.

"Kids as young as five have access to online pornography, for example, and we need a curriculum that addresses those issues before kids have to deal with them on their own," Seslija says.

Former premier Dalton McGuinty had proposed new sex-education curriculum, meant to begin in 2010. However, the changes were left out after being opposed by religious groups and other detractors.

The proposed curriculum included teaching Grade 7 students about contraception and sexually transmitted infections and giving Grade 1 students the correct terminology for genitalia.

"If we look at other provinces, they introduce that language in kindergarten," Seslija said.

The good in games. Findings show video games have an upside

If you still think video games will rot your kid's brain, Dr. Kathy Sanford has something to tell you.

"Painting things with a simplistic, negative brush is not helpful at all," the University of Victoria professor said. "Video games aren't going away, so we need to think about more deep and complex issues rather than just saying don't play them," — and that's exactly what Sanford is doing.

For the past three years, she's observed children playing video games to see how it affects their development. What she's found may shock some parents.

"They're actually learning a lot," Sanford said, noting kids pick up problem-solving and leadership skills from games.

As well, video games that feature collaborative or team play also teach kids how to negotiate and co-operate with their peers. LUKE SIMCOE/METRO

Professor says video games help children build their own moral compasses.

Tory member's exit signals frustration among rank-and-file

Brent Rathgeber might have been a lone-wolf type inside the Conservative team, but he wasn't alone when he tugged against the short leash the Prime Minister's Office keeps on the caucus. Rathgeber leaves behind a growing group of colleagues frustrated with what is perceived as stifling control by Prime Minister Stephen Harper and his staff, and a drift away from the values of core Tory supporters. At the same time, Harper has been pushed off his carefully crafted economic message by a Senate spending scandal that won't die. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Report questions if budget savings can be achieved

The Conservative government is asking Canadians to take it on faith that it can cut $5.2 billion a year in federal spending while maintaining the same level of services, says a report from the Parliamentary Budget Office. The latest report from the independent budget watchdog says federal departments did not provide it with enough information to fully assess whether budget savings proposed in 2012 are achievable. But the data that was passed along suggests the cuts can be reached in the short term, while long-term sustainability remains unknown. THE CANADIAN PRESS

U.S. doctor saves baby Bullwinkle

Southwest Montana. On a fishing trip near Missoula, she and a guide saw a baby moose caught in the current

A Pennsylvania doctor on a guided fishing trip in southwestern Montana went home with an amazing tale of hauling in a 25-pound lunker — a baby moose she helped rescue from rushing waters.

Karen Sciascia of Red Hill, Pa., and a guide were fishing the Big Hole River on Saturday when they spotted a cow moose with a calf trying to cross the river.

"We were watching this adult female struggling back and forth, and we didn't see a baby until we got close," Sciascia told the Missoulian Thursday.

"Mom kept pushing — the current was pretty swift.

"The mother bolted and took off across the river. She was trying to get across the main portion of the channel, and even she struggled."

When the calf stepped off the gravel bar into the water to follow its mother, it was swept downstream.

"It was small, and the river was swift," Sciascia said.

Sciascia and guide Seth McLean followed downriver, finally spotting the tiny moose's nose, which was just above the water of the Big Hole River.

"We got up alongside it, and I just grabbed the little bugger," said the doctor.

Colorado. Riders complain after nude revellers greet tourist train

Passengers on a recent run of a popular historic railroad in southwest Colorado got a bit more scenery than they paid for. More than a dozen revellers partying on a nearby beach doffed their clothes to greet the train.

Their antics on the May 25 run of the Durango & Silverton Narrow Gauge Railroad drew warnings, but no charges, from police in Durango.

A photograph taken by James Slavin, a Phoenix tourist on the train, shows beer-holding — and nude — men and women whooping it up as the tourist train pulls in.

Farmers caught in unpasteurized-milk sale

Two Chilliwack dairy farmers have been handed three-month suspended sentences for selling contraband cow's milk disguised as cosmetics.

Michael Schmidt and Gordon Watson have been sentenced in B.C. to one year of probation for civil contempt, and will end up behind bars if they breach a court order again that bans them from selling the outlawed libation during that period.

The men package unpasteurized milk from a co-op.

The illicit milk was described by the Our Cows enterprise as a cosmetic product but it contained just one ingredient — raw milk.

Health Canada requires all milk sold commercially in Canada to be pasteurized, because the federal agency says the raw product contains harmful bacteria including salmonella, E. coli and Listeria. Opponents of the regulation say raw milk has health benefits.

Pope weighs in on food waste that he says is stealing from the poor

Study. UN food agency research finds that one-third of food produced in the world is lost or wasted

KIERON MONKS
Metro World News

Pope Francis added his voice to the growing campaign against food waste on World Environment Day, attacking a "culture of waste" that is "stealing from the table of those who are poor and hungry."

Awareness around the campaign has grown rapidly, with the European Parliament recently adopting a resolution to halve food waste in member states by 2025. There have already been successes, such as household waste in the U.K. dropping eight per cent over two years.

Activists welcomed the Pope's remarks.

"It is important, and what he said was right," said Tristram Stuart, founder of activist group Feeding the 5000, part of the EU FUSIONS initiative (Food Use of Social Innovation by Optimising Waste Prevention Strategies). "Wasting imported food means the locals in food-insecure areas cannot buy it, so it is taken off their table."

Pope Francis
GETTY IMAGES FILE

But the focus should be more on the suppliers, Stuart claimed. "Retailers shouldn't deflect attention to the consumer; most food waste is in the supply chain. But consumers have the responsibility to ensure the businesses we buy from every day are held to account."

One strategy is to audit the supply and release comprehensive figures on waste, with several European parliaments considering such a proposal. Stuart is optimistic that agreements can be reached.

"Compared to other campaigns like climate change, food waste is something that strikes people as instinctively wrong, from a taxi driver in Delhi to a CEO in New York, and there are relatively simple solutions."

International supermarkets have been slow to commit to waste cutting proposals, but Charlie Clutterbuck of the U.K. Food Ethics Council recommends people influence them by buying closer to home.

"Localism is a solution," he told Metro. "If there is a network to link local initiatives it will stop food prices rising, make us less dependent and change the supply model."

Vancouver. Two teens, adult overdose on liquid ecstasy at dance party

A weekend dance party landed two teens and one young adult in the intensive care unit after they overdosed on a drug known as "liquid ecstasy" or the "date rape drug."

Police found the three Vancouver partygoers, all suspected of overdosing on GHB, when responding to a disturbance at a dance party hosted by a local promoter.

As police dispersed a crowd of 100 young people, a 20-year-old man was carried out of the hall unresponsive and "foaming at the mouth."

Shortly after, patrols found a 15-year-old boy and a 14-year-old girl, unconscious and foaming at the mouth. All three were taken to the intensive care unit.

Police are encouraging parents to speak to their children about "the harmful and potentially lethal consequences of consuming both recreational and prescription drugs," Vancouver police spokesman Sgt. Randy Fincham said in a statement.

GHB's street names

Gamma hydroxybutyrate (GHB), as a street drug, is also known as fantasy, G, liquid ecstasy, liquid X, grievous bodily harm, organic quaalude, salty water, scoop, soap, easy lay, vita-G and georgia home boy.

GHB, gamma-hydroxybutyric acid, is used as an anesthetic in medical settings, but it is also used as an intoxicant as an illegal street drug. Consuming the drug along with alcohol is dangerous and potentially lethal, as it can lead to vomiting and unconsciousness.

It can take form as a white powder or can be dissolved in water to form a clear, odourless solution. It's typically manufactured in illegal drug labs, meaning consumers have no control over what they're actually consuming.

Confectionary cartel? Charges laid in chocolate price-fixing case

The accused in a chocolate price-fixing case could face a bitter fate if convicted — millions of dollars in fines for the companies and potential jail time for the individuals.

Canada's Competition Bureau said Thursday it is laying criminal charges against Nestle Canada Inc., Mars Canada Inc. and ITWAL Ltd., a network of independent wholesale distributors.

Also charged are former Nestle Canada president Robert Leonidas; Sandra Martinez, former president of confectionery for Nestle Canada; and David Glenn Stevens, president and chief executive of ITWAL.

The companies and individuals are accused of conspiracy under the Competition Act.

In separate statements, both Nestle and Mars said they intend to "vigorously defend" themselves against the charges. Both said the allegations date back to 2007 and earlier. A statement from ITWAL was not immediately available.

Hershey Canada Ltd. said it has reached a settlement with the Competition Bureau that will see it plead guilty to one count of price-fixing, which is subject to court approval. The plea is related to communications Hershey had with Canadian competitors in 2007.

Midnight munchies. McDonald's offers breakfast for night owls

McDonald's is taking a small step toward offering breakfast items outside of its usual breakfast hours — at least if you're a night owl.

Starting this month, the fast-food chain says participating 24-hour restaurants in select U.S. locations will offer an After Midnight menu that includes its Egg McMuffin, Big Mac and Chicken McNuggets.

Customers will be able to create Midnight Value Meals, with either fries or hash browns as their side items, McDonald's says.

A mockup of the menu provided by the company showed an Egg McMuffin paired with French fries, next to the heading, "Dinner or Breakfast? Yes."

The rollout of the menu, which is available from midnight to 4 a.m., builds on a Breakfast After Midnight menu the company has been testing. THE CANADIAN PRESS

- Fans of McDonald's breakfast have long wanted the chain to make its Egg McMuffins and biscuits available later in the day.

Strawberry fields under the weather

At least 40 per cent of Nova Scotia's strawberry industry, a sector worth about $18 million annually, has been damaged by an insect-borne virus, provincial Agriculture Minister John MacDonell said Thursday. The virus is carried by aphids and has been detected in the Debert area, near Truro, as well as the Annapolis Valley. But MacDonell said he wasn't worried about the possibility of the virus spreading much further because of the relatively short distances aphids travel. The affected plants aren't harmful to eat but they are often stunted and can't be sold, and berries may disappear from the plants. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

Canadian seeks record for wine-label collection

Guinness attempt. Toronto man has more than 160,000 labels — although he didn't drink all that vino

It would take more than four consecutive days to view every item in what just might be the world's largest wine-label collection.

Toronto resident and former sommelier Alain Laliberte owns about 160,000 wine labels, carefully stored in 123 shoeboxes. He has contacted Guinness World Records because he is confident he has enough to break the current high of 16,349 labels.

Of course, he hasn't managed to taste the contents of all 160,000 bottles. But with an average of 5,000 wines sampled per year, he's not that far off.

Laliberte's hobby led last weekend to him becoming the jury president at a wine-labels championship, organized as part of the International Wine Championship in Quebec City. Jurors selected an Ontario ice wine, Coldhearted Riesling 2007, as the winner among the 81 competitors from different countries.

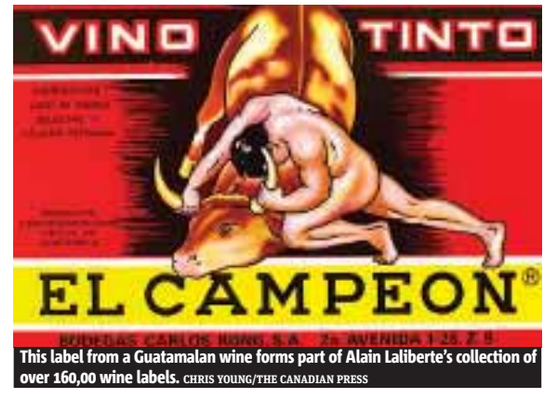
Quoted

"It's interesting that some people find an interest in these small pieces of paper. Some of them are pieces of art."
Wine-label collector Alain Laliberte

Some wine producers put considerable artistic effort into designing labels and the championship aimed to recognize them.

France's Baron Philippe de Rothschild was a pioneer in the area. Starting in 1924, his famous Mouton Rothschild label was designed each year by a renowned artist and the annual tradition continues to this day, decades after his death. Miro, Chagall and Picasso created some of them. The cost of a bottle can run from a few hundred dollars to several thousand.

Among Laliberte's treasured items are one-of-a-kind drafts from Chateau Rauzan-Segla, a Bordeaux wine. Those labels were never used so his labels are unique. The oldest item in his collection comes from Germany and dates back to 1859.



This label from a Guatamalan wine forms part of Alain Laliberte's collection of over 160,00 wine labels. CHRIS YOUNG/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some of his labels refer to countries that no longer exist, like Yugoslavia. Others come from countries that few people associate with wine production, like Ethiopia or Egypt.

Some labels depict animals, flowers or sports. Some are pieces of art while others are downright ribald.

But good art can also make for good business. A marketing professor at Delle Marche Polytechnic University argues that small changes in the bottle can have a big impact on sales. In his article "L'importanza dell'etichetta" (The importance of the label) on his blog, Officinamarketing, Gabriele Micozzi says modifying the packaging can increase annual turnover by up to 169 per cent.

"It's marketing," Laliberte says. "A wine label doesn't tell you anything about the contents." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Synopsis

This new buddy comedy pairs Owen Wilson and Vince Vaughn for the first time since 2005's Wedding Crashers. They are Nick and Billy, two wild and crazy guys whose sales jobs are made obsolete in the technological age. Unable to get a foothold in the new media field they crash Google's Mountain View, Calif. headquarters and become "noogles" in hopes of landing gigs as interns, despite having no experience with computers. "We're looking at some sort of mental Hunger Games against a bunch of genius kids for just a handful of jobs," says Nick.

Searching for laughs

The Internship. Owen Wilson and Vince Vaughn fail to rekindle that Wedding Crashers magic in this poor man's version of Revenge of the Nerds

Richard: Mark, this is the funniest infomercial I've ever seen. As a comedy movie it doesn't rate that high, but as an advertisement for Google it's a knee slapper. I've seen product placement in movies before, but this is something else. By the time Rose Byrnes' character says, "I believe what we do here makes people's lives better," I was ready to worship at the Church of the Sacred Search Engine. We also learn that Google is ranked as the best place to work in America. That's all great, but I was hoping for more laughs with my infomercial. What did you think?

Mark: Ugh! The shameless corporate tie-in made me want to take a shower. And it opens up the door for less savoury companies to do the same thing: can Monsanto: The Movie be far behind? It's too bad, because the leads are great, and it's a great premise — but I didn't laugh once. It could have been a version of Animal House set at a business behemoth, but comes off as a bad Revenge of the Nerds. The idea would make a great reality series, but the movie flops and feels engineered from the first frame onwards.

RC: I'm not so sure I thought the leads were great. There are some laughs in The Internship. Unfortunately, very few of them are generated by Vaughn and Wilson. The chemistry that made Wedding Crashers such a big hit eight years ago is still in place, but the material isn't. They still banter a blue streak but it feels tired and old, like many of the jokes. The two luddites at a tech mecca should have been workable, but it often feels like laughing at grandpa because he can't figure out how to work the remote.

MB: I meant the leads are great, but not in this movie! Everything seems laboured, underscored, and over directed. These two guys may preach the value of eccentricity in the workplace, but the script defies their goal at every turn. It's a very conventional movie that's even a little smarmy at times. The old Vince Vaughn would have made fun of the sentimentality that crowds any good moments out of the picture. And Wilson's role is just too vaporous to register.

RC: Perhaps next time the screenwriters can Google some better jokes.

MB: I say Yahoo! to that.

Still Mine

Director. Michael McGowan

Stars. Genevieve Bujold and James Cromwell

Good movies about and for older audiences are the new black. Still Mine, shot in northern Ontario and New Brunswick, is one of the best. A woman in her 80's falls down the stairs, prompting her husband to build a safer home on their property with his own hands. Local planners and unsupportive children block him at every turn but his will is boundless. The meat of the story is the 61- year bond between the couple, made achingly real by two gifted veteran actors.

Thriller

The Purge

Director. James DeMonaco

Stars. Ethan Hawke, Lena Headey

To call The Purge cooked-up is an injustice to baked goods. A dystopian futuristic thriller about a family enduring an annual 12-hour government-backed event whereby crimes of any sort are legal (somehow this curbs violence the other 364 days of the calendar?) is as contrived and callous as cinema gets. If the filmmaker's aim was to create a moral allegory akin to A Clockwork Orange, he didn't even come within an eyelash.

There's not much 'Buzz' in space: Aldrin

While astronaut Buzz Aldrin enjoys movies about space, he doesn't always think they get it right. His main point of contention after seeing After Earth: "There was a lot of noise. In space, you don't get that much noise." Aldrin, who followed Neil Armstrong onto the surface of the moon during the historic Apollo 11 landing in 1969, says that "noise doesn't propagate in a vacuum. We talked over headsets."

Aldrin enjoyed the father-son dynamic between Will Smith and son Jaden, but thought there was a little too much "shoot'em-up" for his taste. "I hope the aliens are more peaceful than they are in this film, wherever they are," Aldrin joked.

Superbad writers talk the apocalypse, comedy and condoms

LIZ BROWN
liz.brown@metronews.ca

The kings of the buddy comedy are back with a film of apocalyptic proportions. Seth Rogen and Evan Goldberg have been friends since childhood and writing partners since high school, where they first penned Superbad.

Their new collaboration, This is the End, features an ensemble cast of some of their favourite past co-conspirators. Rogen, Jay Baruchel, James Franco, Jonah Hill, Danny McBride and Craig Robinson (all playing themselves) hunker down in Franco's house during the end of the world. A veritable list of Hollywood's who's who round out the cast with bit parts: Michael Cera, Rihanna, Channing Tatum, Paul Rudd, Jason Segel and more have a role to play in the rapture.

Recently Metro caught up with the Vancouver-bred pals in Toronto over (fittingly) a bottle of Molson Canadian.

There's a lot of self-deprecation in the movie. Was it hard to get the actors to poke fun at themselves?
Evan: The studios were kind of frightened by the concept of actors playing themselves.

Seth: The actors were really into it. I don't think anyone said no based on content. We were going out to these actors to see if they would play themselves so they were overwhelmingly psyched about it, so it was nice to see that some people thought it was a good idea.

It's the end of the world, you can only have three survival items. What are they?
Evan: Three of these four: water, food, guns, condoms.

Seth: The thing about guns is they can help you acquire any other items you may need...

Evan: But you don't want venereal disease.

Seth: With a gun, you can get condoms.

Evan: True.

Wouldn't condoms depend on who you were with?
Evan: Condoms are just always a good idea.

Seth: You can fill them with water and play with them.

Final question. What would be the last thing you guys would say to each other?
Seth: You are nothing without me.

Evan: Hahaha

Seth: The laugh is probably what would actually happen.

Evan: I hope my last moment is just hahaha.

Green explores Alexis breakup on new album

Interview. Former Alexisonfire frontman Dallas Green talks about his depression after leaving band he helped form

Two years ago, Little Hell granted City and Colour's Dallas Green his greatest success yet — platinum sales, his first chart-topping album and eventually, a Juno Award for songwriter of the year. So naturally, as he toured his most popular record yet, he was miserable.

That Green was blue had nothing to do with Little Hell, which he liked, but instead a heavy secret he'd been toting: the 32-year-old had already decided to depart the beloved post-hardcore band he'd helped to found more than a decade earlier, Alexisonfire, but news wouldn't reach the public until months later.

"Making Little Hell, I knew I had left the band," he recalled during a recent interview at an east Toronto bar. "I was lying to all the public, right? ... And that really (messed) me up."

It took making The Hurry and the Harm — out Tuesday — to help heal Green. As he was wrapping up the Little Hell tour, he "rekindled his relationship" with the rest of Alexisonfire and they announced plans for a farewell jaunt.

He decided to work quickly, wanting to figure out new songs before re-immersing himself in the Alexis headspace before their bittersweet victory lap. In Nashville and Toronto, he put together The Hurry and the Harm and had a "wonderful experience." After completing the Alexis tour, he was suddenly in a far more positive place than he had been in a long time.

"For the first time in eight or nine years, I didn't have anything to do," he said. "I had the record done ... and I finished and closed the book on the Alexis chapter. The first couple weeks of January are the first two weeks I've ever relaxed, like literally relaxed, in eight or nine years. And it was a really big moment. It was like a proverbial weight off my shoulders."

Cruising on a crossover

New music. Florida Georgia Line living the high life as they find themselves topping Nashville charts with a summer crossover hit

Florida Georgia knows there is nothing like a crossover hit.
AL POWERS/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The guys in Florida Georgia Line thought they were riding a whirlwind when their first single improbably made it to the top of the country charts late last year.

Now that Nelly has entered the picture and Cruise is rocketing up the pop charts, Tyler Hubbard and Brian Kelley have discovered — like Taylor Swift, Lady Antebellum and a few other country acts over the years — that there's nothing like the ride of a crossover hit.

"I think it's kind of like pouring gas on a fire," Hubbard said.

"It's been wild."

They hold a coveted headliner's spot during the Country Music Association Festival's nightly concerts this weekend, a sure sign you've made it in the world of rhinestone twang.

A year ago they played a small stage outside LP Field promoting promising acts as fans streamed in to watch the top stars later that night at the four-day festival.

Since then, Cruise went No. 1 on the country charts, they won the Academy of Country Music's best new artist award, scored coveted opening slots on tour with country's hottest acts Swift and Luke Bryan, and met Nelly. Their remix is currently No. 5 on Billboard's Hot 100 songs chart. Because of it, they had a starring role at the CMT Music Awards, where they won a leading two trophies Wednesday night. They're one of the most visible acts in Nashville in a week when every star is in town.

"I don't think it gets any better," Kelley said while standing in an arena hallway after CMT Music Awards rehearsals Monday night. "It's been crazy to see this ride take off."

Few artists have risen so quickly in the fairly stagnant world of country music. Fans are loyal, but they aren't always quick to adapt. Top stars like Jason Aldean and Eric Church, for instance, were at it for a decade before hitting the top reaches of country music.

Ethan Hawke

Ethan Hawke gushes over Cage's acting abilities

Ethan Hawke admits he's more than a little "obsessed" with fellow actor Nicolas Cage.

"He's the only actor since Marlon Brando that's actually done anything new with the art of acting," he said during a Q&A session on Reddit. "He's successfully taken us away from an obsession with naturalism into a kind of presentation style of acting that I imagine was popular with the old troubadours. If I could erase his bottom half bad movies and only keep his top half movies, he would blow everyone out of the water." No word, though, on whether Hawke is going to let Cage influence his own acting style.

Tatum worries about Bieber's development

Despite having a newborn daughter at home to concern himself with, Channing Tatum admits he's more worried about another young person: Justin Bieber. "I do believe that whatever age you become famous, you end up staying that age," Tatum tells Vanity Fair. "I worry about Bieber, man. That kid's wildly talented. I hope he doesn't fall down into the usual ways of young kids because it's so hard for someone to be responsible when they're not asked to be."

Justin Bieber

Pop stars in space

This may or may not give Channing Tatum more reason to be concerned: Justin Bieber has booked a spot on a Virgin Galactic suborbital space flight, according to Virgin founder Richard Branson. "Great to hear Justin Bieber and (his manager) Scooter Braun are latest Virgin Galactic future astronauts. Congrats, see you up there," Branson posted to Twitter this week. Bieber seemed to confirm the news by re-tweeting the mogul's sentiments. Back in February, Bieber tweeted that he wants to "do a concert in space," so perhaps this is more of a scouting trip than a vacation.

Planning a wedding is no piece of cake, although you do get one in the end. But the road to the big day can be bumpy, especially when it comes to choosing wine to be served for that all important toast to the bride.

Try to focus on wines that will charm everyone from your know-it-all boss to your new mother-in-law. Worry less about what you prefer and more about what the majority of your guests will enjoy.

Then there's the cost. Here is where size matters. There's a savings component when you trade up, so bigger is always better.

The selection of 1.5 litre bottles varies wildly across the country. So does their flavour profiles, with many "Canadian" versions made from a blend of imported and domestic juice.

Chile offers some of the best value when it comes to larger bottles, with Concha y Toro's 2011 Frontera Cabernet Sauvignon Merlot (1,500 ml, $13.95 to $19.99) offering bright, red berry fruit and Frontera Sauvignon Blanc (1,500 ml, $13.95 to $19.99) showing off gooseberry and citrus expression.

Truth be told, they're what I served at my nuptials.

A great way to make your own healthier pizzas is to use thin flour tortillas or pita bread rather than the thick pizza dough that has more calories than nutrients!

Use whatever vegetables and cheese you like.

1. Preheat the oven to 400 F. Place pita bread or tortillas on pizza metal or ceramic dish.

2. Divide the tomato sauce among the breads, ensuring to spread evenly.

Ingredients

- 4 flour small tortillas or pita breads (preferably whole wheat)
- 3/4 cup tomato pasta sauce
- 8 small mushrooms, thinly sliced
- 1/4 cup diced sweet red or green pepper
- 1 tbsp chopped fresh basil
- 1/2 tsp dried oregano
- 1 cup shredded mozzarella cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped feta cheese (optional)

You mozza try this dish. It's grape!

The delightful pairing of sweet grapes and salty cheese will make this gourmet pizza a hit with friends and family.

Try using blue cheese or Gorgonzola instead of goat cheese for a stronger flavour and for great crunch and flavour, choose firm grapes and fresh pine nuts.

1. On a lightly floured surface, roll out the pizza dough and top with a drizzle of olive oil.

2. In a bowl, combine grapes, rosemary leaves, pine nuts and a drizzle of olive oil. Set aside.

3. Slide the pizza dough on the barbecue and cook on medium heat for 2 to 3 minutes on each side until slightly golden brown.

4. Remove dough from barbecue and top with half of the Mozzarellissima, then all of the goat cheese and the grape mixture. Cover with the remaining Mozzarellissima.

Ingredients

- 2 lb (1 kg) store-bought pizza dough
- olive oil, to taste
- 1 cup (250 ml) seedless white grapes, halved
- 1 cup (250 ml) seedless red grapes, halved
- 3 sprigs rosemary, removing leaves from stems
- 3 tbsp (45 ml) pine nuts, chopped
- 1 1/3 cups (300 g) Mozzarellissima cheese, shredded
- 2 oz (50 g) goat cheese (or blue cheese)
- fleur de sel, to taste

5. Place back on the barbecue, close cover and cook on medium heat for 5 to 7 minutes, or until the cheese is fully melted. Remove from barbecue, lightly season with fleur de sel and serve. NEWS CANADA/ SAPUTOALACARTE.CA.

DOG DAYS OF SUMMER

FUN ACTIVITIES FOR YOU AND YOUR PET

GEM PHOTOGRAPHY/VEER

Discover the joy of being active with your canine companion. Try some of these fun activities:

1 Go for a walk. Sounds basic, but many pet owners don't make it a daily practice. "Behaviour problems and obesity — the No. 1 medical problem for dogs — can arise from inadequate exercise," says Dr. Deji Odetoyinbo, a veterinarian with a busy urban practice in Toronto and 12 years experience in emergency medicine.

2 Play fetch. Whether you use balls, squeak toys or some other retrievable object, many dogs love fetching. "Dogs are social animals and retrieving something is an interaction that's mentally gratifying and intensely rewarding."

3 Go for a swim. Dogs generally like water, but swimming comes with a few caveats. "Not every breed should be allowed in water — bulldogs in particular," Odetoyinbo says. "Make sure the current is safe. And remember that floating algae can be deadly, so if the water has a blue-green film, keep your dog out."

4 Go for obedience training. This is especially important for younger dogs, but even old dogs can learn new tricks. "It's also a good way to solidify the bond between pet and owner."

5 Take your dog visiting. A well-behaved dog can do wonders for seniors and those with developmental disabilities. "Talk to your vet first to ensure your dog has the right temperament and is free of communicable health problems, since some people you encounter may be immune-compromised," Odetoyinbo says.

6 Go on vacation. "Just make sure to take along first aid items, medications and food (in case you can't get your regular brand where you are going). Give your dog plenty of bathroom breaks, water and cool air while driving. Ensure immunizations are up to date and check that your destination is pet friendly."

STRETCHING YOUR LEGS WITH YOUR FOUR-LEGGED FRIEND

To keep walks happy, comfortable and safe, here is a quick list of things to consider when you are out and about with your four-legged friend this summer, compiled with the help of Dr. Deji Odetoyinbo, a Toronto veterinarian with 12 years experience in emergency medicine.

Plan your route. It's easy to head out, then find that you have gone too far and your pet is struggling. "Especially short-faced breeds like pugs and bulldogs can suffer severe respiratory distress if they're exercised on hot days," Odetoyinbo says.

Stay on the grass. Concrete or paved surfaces can cause burned foot pads if you are walking on a hot day. "Staying on a path or grassy surface will keep paws cooler and act as better cushioning for a dog's joints."

Go early or late. "Many dogs keep going until they drop, so it's important to ensure they don't get overheated. Walk early or late in the day when it's cooler."

Take a leash. "Even if you're headed to an off-leash zone, your pet should be leashed en route." Not all dogs are well-behaved in the dog park, so it's best to be able to leash your pet if it or other dogs it is playing with are acting up.

Carry enough poop bags. One dog, one bag, right? Wrong! You may need extras sincesome dogs go multiple times — or someone else in the park might be stuck. "Three bags is a good number," Odetoyinbo says.

Don't forget water. Most dogs aren't trained to drink out of a bottle. "There are great collapsible containers that double as a dispenser that are handy and easy to carry." Check your local pet store.

Woods' $78M last year ranks first

Tiger Woods is back on top of Forbes' list of highest-paid athletes.

The star golfer spent 11 straight years at No. 1 on the magazine's list before falling to third in 2012. The magazine estimates he made $78.1 million over the last year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL playoffs. With Boston ahead 11-2 in goals over the series, Pittsburgh needs to fill the net to avoid sweep

The Penguins are improving at putting more shots on net. They just need to put more into the net.

And they're running out of time.

Pittsburgh forced Boston goalie Tuukka Rask to make 53 saves, but the Bruins won 2-1 in double overtime on Wednesday night for a 3-0 lead in the Eastern Conference final.

The Penguins must keep firing pucks at Rask, forward Pascal Dupuis said Thursday, and "with the firepower that we have on our team, eventually they will go in."

If "eventually" doesn't come Friday night, their season will be over in stunning fashion. The team of Sidney Crosby, Evgeni Malkin and other top offensive threats will have been swept in the best-of-seven series.

It would be a shocking end to a season in which the Penguins led the NHL in scoring, and averaged 4.27 goals per game in their first two playoff series, but have been outscored 11-2 in the three losses to the Bruins.

Only three teams have overcome 3-0 playoff deficits. The Penguins know the odds are stacked heavily against them but are trying to ignore that.

"I think if you're betting right now, you're not betting on the Penguins down 3-0," said forward Brandon Sutter, who has one of their two goals. "But we're not going to quit. The percentages are, obviously, against us, but we've got a good team."

The top-seeded Penguins were dominated by the fourth-seeded Bruins in the first two games, losing 3-0 and 6-1. But in Game 3, they outplayed Boston for much of regulation.

"We need to be the team who we believe we are and go back to what's made us successful," forward Matt Cooke said.

"Obviously, the result wasn't there, but the effort and determination and style of play was more like who we are."

The Bruins won when Patrice Bergeron, covered closely by defenceman Brooks Orpik, redirected Brad Marchand's pass behind goalie Tomas Vokoun at 15:19 of the second overtime.

An inch or two either way, and the pass might have missed Bergeron's stick or his shot could have gone wide of the net.

"He drove the net. He outbattled the guy," said Bruins centre David Krejci, the leading scorer in the playoffs. "It looked pretty simple, but it's tough when you go to the net to keep your stick on the ice and he managed to do that and got a big goal."

Comeback kids

The last team to lose a series after going up 3-0 was the Bruins in the Eastern Conference semifinals against the Philadelphia Flyers in 2010.

Hawks in homestretch against champs

Marian Hossa scored the tie-breaking goal early in the third period, and the Chicago Blackhawks moved to the brink of the Stanley Cup final with a 3-2 victory over the Los Angeles Kings on Thursday night in Game 4 of the Western Conference final.

Patrick Kane tapped home the tying goal as Chicago rallied from a second-period deficit to snap the defending Stanley Cup champions' 15-game home-winning streak dating all the way back to March. Bryan Bickell had a goal and an assist for the top-seeded Blackhawks, who took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

Blackhawks	Kings

Slava Voynov and Dustin Penner scored for the Kings, who had won their first eight playoff games at Staples Center. The champs are in trouble after Jonathan Quick failed to match Corey Crawford, who made 19 saves.

Game 5 is Saturday night in Chicago.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Try not to let your anxieties get the better of you. As Neptune turns retrograde in the most sensitive area of your chart today, you may see problems where none exist. Act as if life is wonderful — and it will be.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Today's events will encourage you to believe that all things are possible. But they could also tempt you to take foolish risks, so think before you act. If you make a mistake, fix it.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
Keep things simple today. Also, tread carefully when dealing with employers and other important people. They may see you as a threat and try to clip your wings.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
The planets warn you should watch what you say today, especially if you are one of those Cancerians who tend to speak before fully engaging your brain. You are entitled to your opinion but others are just as entitled to disagree.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You will act on impulse quite a bit over the next 24 hours. Just be careful you don't say anything that could have a negative financial impact.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Your emotions may be raging but you are determined not to let anyone know about it. That's probably a good move, because if your rivals realize how deep your feelings are, they may exploit them.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Don't let your responsibilities weigh you down. It does not matter how much work you have to do or how far behind you are in your schedule, you must remain cheerful.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Others may give in to despair today but no way are you going to let it affect you. In fact, the more those around you indulge in feelings of doom and gloom, the more you will laugh at them.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
Don't feel guilty about what happens to others. You are not responsible for the world and its woes and those who say you are should be laughed at loud and long.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Neptune's apparent change of direction in the travel area of your chart will leave you a bit confused about what you should be doing and where you should be going. The good news is there's no need to rush.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
You may think you know what is going on but the planets warn you are missing an important piece of the puzzle and it could cost you money. Whatever else you do today, don't take chances.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
Neptune, your ruler, begins one of its retrograde phases today. Don't be surprised if important issues seem to move in the opposite direction of where you want them to.
